CANTON.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

CANTON, January 14.

AN IMPERIALIST PLOT.

A story appears at considerable length in the Chinese newspapers telling of a plot in favour of the Imperialists and Yuan Shi Kai, whether engineered by him or his confederates is another question, and whether true or not is very questionable; but it is a possible turn of the tide. The story runs that it has been arranged that a large number of rowdies or hoodlums shall make an attack on the foreign Legations in Peking on a given date in such numbers as if not successful in capturing them they will still be able to do sufficient damage and kill sufficient foreigners to bring about the intervention of the Powers. This would seem to be a sort of last resource, the idea being that the Manchus, having lost China, are determined the reformers shall not step into their shoes. It is very difficult for a foreigner to know just exactly how much credence to give a story of this kind, but it is quite like Chinese character to do a thing of the kind. Not a great deal of importance need be laid on the actual story, but the native press making a good deal of it shows that there is a genuine fear of foreign intervention in the case of any indiscretions, and that the new party are going to take all precautions they can to save any external trouble. In Canton the guards around the Western suburbs and particularly in the quarter adjacent to Shumee are being increased and no rowdism is being tolerated at all.

PAVING UP ARREARS.

Yesterday the majority of the troops whose pay was in arrears were paid up-to-date at the Yamen. Money has arrived during the last few days from Hongkong, and this has enabled the authorities to tide over the present difficulty. The different regiments marched along the bund in a sort of procession with flags and bugles blowing and carrying all sorts of guns, old and new. High spirits prevailed everywhere, and showed quite clearly that if the new Government can only keep its end up in the matter of money the greatest of its difficulties is past. The troops are quite manageable and discipline is all right while they are paid up to date and the ruling party have a strong hold over all ranks; but as soon as they get a hold over the Government here by being owed money they make themselves a general nuisance to everybody. More troops still are being sent up North, and the China Merchant steamship An Ping is at present in the river awaiting a complement of troops for Nanking.

EVERYTHING QUIET.

All is quietness in the City just now, and there is no sign of anything about to break this order of things for some time. The weather for the past few days has been cold, damp and disagreeable and anything but ideal for the soldiers quartered on Shumee. This is the time of the year when we usually get splendid weather, and it is a great pity that it has broken down like this.

SHAMEN.

Last night about half past ten there was a trial alarm on Shamen. The Klaxons went off and the whole mobile force of the island turned out to their different positions. The gunboats landed parties and for an hour the island was in a hum. Behind the different ramparts of sandbags parties were securely posted and no point of vantage was left unguarded. Everything was done in a very efficient manner, and the men from the gunboats, the R.O.V.L.I., the Baluchis and the Defence Corps all showed that they would be a force to be reckoned with in case of any real action. The retiring sounded after about an hour, and the island resumed its usual stillness.

SUPREME COURT.

Tuesday, 16th January.

IN APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

BEFORE THE CHIEF JUSTICE (SIR FRANCIS PIGOTT), AND THE PUISNE JUDGE (MR. H. H. J. GOMPERTZ).

APPLICATION FOR NEW TRIAL.

The motion for a new trial was resumed in the case of Tang Wong Shi against Lai Chi Chin. Mr. Slade, K.C. (instructed by Mr. W. B. Hind) appeared for the appellant, and Mr. Eldon Potter (instructed by Mr. Goldring) for the respondent.

Mr. Slade submitted that there was misdirection, coupled with the fact that the learned Judge, thinking the facts were sufficiently before the jury, and after hearing the evidence and the addresses of counsel, omitted to refer specifically to the facts, and did not point out to the jury that from certain facts proved and admitted, they were entitled to infer malice, and the other necessary ingredients which go to make up a cause of action. They did not have it put to them that from the same facts they were at liberty to infer that the whole thing had been done maliciously. The question of malice should have been put specifically to the jury.

Mr. Potter contended that Mr. Pollock, in the court below, opened his case as an action for malicious arrest. If he had wished to rely on the issue of false imprisonment, it would have been necessary for him to explain to the jury the two causes of action, though it might be, if he could not prove malice on the first cause of action, he would be entitled to succeed on the second cause if he could prove that the plaintiff was imprisoned and that defendant was to blame.

The case was adjourned until to-day.

HOME AND CHINA AFFAIRS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, December 26.

CHRISTMAS REFLECTIONS.

Boxing Night and the drizzle one in all my memory. The old saying that a "green Christmas means a full churchyard," let us hope, has outgrown its application; otherwise this is an ill-omened winter indeed. It has been a sort of Turkish bath atmosphere, punctuated by heavy downpours of rain. There has been no sign of snow, but plenty of slush. Shopkeepers declare it has been the worst season in all their memory for perishable things—the weather has been so mild. Alas! for the old-fashioned Christmas that was—according to accounts—all snow and holly and holly. Still there are attempts at gaiety, and though the old domesticity of the festival seems to be in danger of disappearing, the hotel managers are making it a time of revelling for old and young who can foot the bill. Every manager in town has strained his brains thinking of novel effects for Christmas and New Year parties, and some of the schemes are ingenious, even if a bit far-fetched at times. Hundreds of people came up from the country for a Christmas frolic at these merry-making hotels, mixed with a round of the entertainments outside.

"THE MIRACLE."

Perhaps the most notable of them all is the great wordless mystery play, "The Miracle" at Olympia. It is a play, a spectacle, or a feast of splendour as you like. Professor Max Rheinhardt of Berlin came over specially for Saturday night's production, as also did Humperdinck, the great composer, who was responsible for the music. "What will the English think of this?" asked a well-known foreign correspondent whom I met between the acts. I gave him the Premier's answer—"Wait and see"—but I was rather surprised when at the finish the audience showed such tremendous and such prolonged enthusiasm. Rheinhardt, Humperdinck, the manager and the principal characters, were all called out into the arena, time and again—for London had seen something that for size and magnificence it had never seen before. It was as though one of the great outdoor pageants of Frank Lascelles had been staged under cover, with a concentration and studied beauty that a wider field would have tended to dissipate. The great Olympia hall is turned into a Gothic cathedral, with tolling bells, stained glass windows, dim religious light effects, and all the other appurtenances of a religious edifice. In the centre rises a great dazzling figure of the Madonna. The nuns troop in at one end and the townspeople at the other—a chorus and principals two thousand strong. The aged abbess hands over the keys to the beautiful nun selected by the sisters, but before she closes the doors of the church the spielmann with his pipes leads her to dance among the children, and while she is thus engaged the mailed knight appears at the doorway and watches her. She feels the call of the world, but the abbess appears and condemns her as a punishment for her delays to spend the night in prayer before the Madonna. The doors are fastened securely and the long lone vigil commences. Then knocking is heard at the door, and the nun appeals to the Virgin to release her. There is no sign, so the nun runs to the door but fails to open the great lock. Again she appeals to the Virgin without effect, and at last in a frenzy she snatches the babe from the arms of the Holy Mother only to see it caught upward in a shaft of light. The doors by this time have opened and the knight appears in the church telling his fuming story of what the nun will see outside if she will come with him. They kneel together and then, when the spielmann's pipes are heard again, she consents and takes of the garments of her office. On the knight's horse she is led away. Next we see them under the trees of the forest, where she dances for the amusement of the knight. But a wonderful scene follows in which a hunting party, headed by a robber count, comes on the scene. In the fight that follows, the knight is killed and the nun is captured. There follows a carousel at the count's castle, where the spielmann is again busily piping, while the captured nun dances on the table for the delectation of the count and his retinue. The king's son enters and claims the dancer for himself. The count and he at last throw the dice for her and the king's son wins. We are shown the bed of the prince being got ready for the great indignity, but just as the mocking revelry is at its height the old king appears and orders his son away. Then a few minutes later, in a scuffle, the old king kills his son in error. The next scene shows a masque organised to console the king and wear him from his sorrow, but such is the magic effect of the nun's dancing that she is condemned to death for witchcraft after a weird effect in which all the revellers seem to be caught in a fearful catastrophe of flame. But just as the headman has raised his axe to strike, the people, electrified by her beauty, rush forward and bear her away on a horse.

In succeeding scenes she is shown as a camp follower with a baby at her breast, suffering all sorts of indignities, always lured by the spielmann's pipes and always being loved by this or that admirer. Meanwhile there has been a great uproar at the abbey, for the nuns have come in to discover that the great figure has gone. In reality the Madonna has come to life, has donned the robes of the errant nun and is performing her duties. The nuns are about to strike the sister they suppose unfaithful, when the abbess by instinct feels her divinity and all make obeisance before her. So the ministrations go on till the poor, wretched nun from the world is driven into the abbey by the storm, only to find that her baby is dead. The Madonna at the moment of her entry resumes her place on her pedestal, while the distraught wanderer gives vent to her emotions at her feet. Then the compassionate Virgin takes the dead babe to her arms and the wandering mother on seeing it falls in a swoon, as the bells of the abbey burst forth into a joyous peal that brings the nuns flocking in alarm to the edifice. There, to their amazement, they see the miracle is complete—the Madonna is re-established and the missing sister is lying prone on the floor. They demonstrate their joy in such thanksgiving that the nun returns from her faint and turns to flee. But wherever she turns the mocking laugh of the spielmann stops her. Then she flings herself in despair at the feet of the Virgin, later to rise calmly and to toll the matins bell. This gives but a sketch of three hours of such spectacle as will startle every one who goes to it. We have had things as beautiful in their smaller way, but never so perfectly attuned a cast of two thousand, never so variegated a web of sorrow and grandeur, joy and thanksgiving, ugliness and beauty, on so grand a scale as this. The nun in this case is a Russian, Natcha Trouhanowa, whose emotions are so fiercely portrayed that tears stream down her cheeks as she supplicates before the Madonna.

THE ROYAL FAMILY.

At Sandringham the Royal Family, who remain in England, have been spending Christmas with Queen Alexandra. They had cables from their parents in India, a bear's head from the Kaiser and all sorts of good things from the Royal kitchens at Windsor Castle, where no matter where the Royal Christmas is spent, the chief items of the fare have been prepared for centuries. Writing of the King and Queen reminds me that I heard the other day that the visit had impressed itself so much on the minds of the illiterates, and the pictures of their Majesties had had such an effect in spreading familiarity with the appearance of the great white Emperor and his consort that the authorities are considering a wholesale distribution of royal pictures from north to south of the dependency. This is taking a leaf out of the book of Russia, where for years the officials and the nobles have seen to it that the meanest moujik's house had a picture of the "Little Father" of all the Russians, for it was through this touch of acquaintance with the Czar was a very pervading influence for loyalty. It is quite on the cards that the King will visit the Kaiser towards the end of February, after Parliament has been opened to another stormy session.

THE POWERS AND PERSIA.

While Russia is sticking her claws deeper into the Persian lamb, presumably with British acquiescence, the usual demands are heard for "compensation." Germany has not yet set up an official claim on that head, but an unofficial claim has been registered in some German papers to the effect that Germany should have some "compensation" for not meddling in the Russo-British arrangements in Persia. It is curious also that the Deutsche Bank has just sent an expert to Persia, with the approval of the Foreign Office, to report what the prospects are for extending trade. There has been such busy parrelling out of tracts of Africa that it seems about time Asia came in for attention.

LIFE BELOW STAIRS.

What servants get up to in the absence of their masters can be better guessed at than described, except in rare cases where the facts come out. A distinguished nobleman, occupying one of the most famous of London houses, has been telling his Christmas guests a weird tale of what went on "below stairs" for a long time without his knowledge. Some months ago he noticed that his house was shadowed very strictly, but he thought the police possibly had reasons for that in the ordinary course of their work. But he was more mystified when a detective called on him and asked how many men servants he had; at the same time apologising for not giving reasons for the inquiry. One particular servant was asked after and the reply was given that he was thoroughly trusted and had been there for years. About a dozen men servants were employed in all in the house. Then quite recently the detective called again and invited the nobleman to conduct him round the lower quarters of the house. Then it was discovered that a room that had been regarded by the owner as a bedroom was in reality a gambling room, and had been one for six years. There was a perfectly poised roulette table and all the equipment necessary for a Monte Carlo flight of the gambling spirit, including packs of cards, luxurious appointments, buffet, wine cooler and all the rest of it. Two other rooms were adjacent to the wine store of the house, fully equipped for card playing. It turned out that the place was used as a resort for "gentlemen's gentlemen," presided over nightly by the trusted servant aforesaid. All the servants were sworn to secrecy, and were given a share in the heavy profits of the tables. There has been no prosecution, for the points of law were rather obscure on such a place, and the owner was dead against venturing the scandal. But he has made a clean sweep of the Rousehold staff, and the "gentlemen's gentlemen" are now mourning the loss of their most popular resort.

THE REVOLUTION.

U.S. TROOPS FOR NORTH CHINA.

A battalion of the 15th Infantry left Manila by the transport Luzon for Chingwangtao on the 12th inst. It is understood that the main force of 570 men will be stationed at Tientsin, except a few who will be posted along the stations of the Peking-Tientsin railroad. Arrangements had been made by the quartermasters to supply an entire brigade of 5,000 men instead of the four companies which received orders, and this necessitated the opening of crates and boxes and the entire change of programme by that department. The departure of the troops did not take place as soon as had been contemplated.

TRADE OPPORTUNITIES IN CHINA.

Mr. H. H. Fox, who was acting as Commercial Attaché to the British Legation in Peking last year, is now in England. Existing conditions, he told a Press representative, are naturally somewhat unfavourable to the foreign trader, though signs are plentiful that that will pass away. Most of the weakness in trading had been due in past years to the lack of intimate acquaintance with China's real needs, a condition now being improved by the application of systematic and far-reaching methods in bringing the possibilities of China before the British trader by constant Consular reports. As an example of lack of knowledge, Mr. Fox cited the case of a British exporter of made-up ribbon, who was under the impression that Chinamen required the article for the purpose of adorning the pigtail. There are not wanting signs of the Government's disposition to Westernise the whole system of China, and Mr. Fox attributes the large volume of export trade within recent times to the improved facilities for transport afforded by the railways and to the effort made during the past few years to develop China's natural resources and improve her antiquated methods of cultivation. Mr. Fox gives an instance of Japanese activity in the China trade. In 1906 that country supplied China with some 733,436 cotton pieces, whilst, according to the latest statistics, nearly 2,400,000 pieces passed from Japan to the mainland. The British authorities are fully alive to Japanese competition in the piece-goods trade, and are taking steps to develop their own business along broader lines, though, says Mr. Fox, the matter of the superiority of the British article has never yet been questioned.

In regard to the importation of foreign clothing, as affording an index of the Westernisation of China, Mr. Fox says that the quantities imported would seem to indicate the beginnings of that revolution in Chinese dress which must follow the adoption of Western education and modes of life in the country. With the pigtail must inevitably go the long gown, hood, and to Chinese eyes, there is something incongruous in the appearance of a man in a flowing robe of silk or cotton, whose close-cropped head is surmounted by a foreign cap or Panama hat, and whose feet are encased in leather boots. One consequence will be that in the near future there must be a vast demand for articles of dress, such as flat cloth caps, soft felt and straw hats, singlets, socks, and shoes, mostly of the cheapest kind. Whether the British trader will be able to compete with the Japanese, however, is to be seen.

THE FAMINE RELIEF PROBLEM IN CHINA.

A COLONISATION SCHEME.

A scheme described as "The Bailis Colonisation Scheme" to afford permanent relief for famine refugees is receiving consideration in the North. The following brief explanation of the scheme is condensed from a letter dated December 17 from Mr. Bailis to the Central China Relief Committee:

A tract of land is to be cleared, drained and prepared for dry farming by Famine Refugees labour working in gangs under supervision. The men employed on this work will be closely watched and the land being ready, a selection from them will be made of the most suitable who together with their families will be put in tentative occupation of farms of from 20 to 50 mou in area with the prospect, if they prove industrious and honest, of becoming in the first place the settled tenants and secondly of being able to add to the original acre.

Their families are to be assisted till the first crop is harvested and there after are expected to support themselves and in addition to pay taxes sufficient to meet any Government tax on the property as a whole and interest on the money expended on giving them their start until the labor is repaid.

There is provision to enable the tenants to pay a large portion of these taxes in labour instead of cash in case the latter should be found too heavy a burden at the start.

The sum expended would be a first charge on the farm, so that they would be secured against a defaulting tenant until such times the money is repaid, which would be done by progressive instalments.

An area of 220 mou or thereabouts is to be retained by the Management of the Colony and worked as an experimental model farm.

The numerous excellent points of the scheme briefly outlined above may be summarized thus:—

(1) Permanent betterment of the families settled on the farms.

(2) Provision of useful labour for famine refugees.

(3) Gradual removal of families from areas liable to famine as the scheme develops.

(4) Consequent increase in the general prosperity of districts dealt with.

The numerous excellent points of the scheme briefly outlined above may be summarized thus:—

THE LEGENDRE EXPEDITION.

By the M. M. mail steamer Caledonia, there arrived from Shanghai a very distinguished French traveller, who is proceeding to Hanoi to wait orders as to his future movements. He is Captain Noiret of the French Army, a member of the well-known Dr. Legendre's scientific mission to Yunnan, which came to grief in the Lolo country last October, when Dr. Legendre and another companion, Lieutenant Dessier, were severely wounded by the unsophisticated inhabitants of that hospitable region.

Captain Noiret gave a representative of the Shanghai Times a brief but graphic and entertaining account of his travels in the remote south-west of this Empire which he has recently been traversing.

Dr. Legendre's mission was organised under the auspices of the French Ministry of Public Instruction, for the purpose of studying the economic and scientific conditions of south-west China and reporting to the Ministry upon such subjects as the products, trade and industry of the region, as well as its geology, botany, zoology and other natural features. The mission left Paris on September 10, 1910, and arrived at Yunnan on the 14th of the following November. It consisted of Dr. Legendre, Captain Noiret and Lieutenant Dessier, and a staff of servants and attendants. Dr. Legendre was in general command of the mission; Captain Noiret's duty was to survey the country traversed, to make astronomical observations and to study national history, and Lieutenant Dessier, who was the artist of the party, had a special duty assigned him in making sketches incident to the journey.

Arrived on the field, the mission lost no time in setting to work, and the region between Yunnan and Mianming, where the mission arrived on September 22 last year, was explored without incident of moment.

Here the members of the mission separated, Dr. Legendre and Lieutenant Dessier proceeding to the west, while Captain Noiret, accompanied only by two Chinese servants, set out for Chungking, via Chengtu, with the intention of turning back through Szechuan as soon as he had reached the Yangtze port, and rejoining his companions at Yunnan.

Captain Noiret travelled via Foshan and Kiating, where he arrived on November 19, and five days later he reached Chengtu without having experienced any particularly exciting adventures en route. Continuing his journey, Kin Hien was reached on December 1, and Chungking on December 10, and here it was that Captain Noiret first heard of the attack upon Dr. Legendre and Lieutenant Dessier, and the disaster which had overtaken the mission. He was informed that his wounded comrades and their followers had made their way back to Ningyuen, but beyond this point he had no information as to their movements.

Upon learning what had happened Captain Noiret was for proceeding overland at once to Ningyuen, but owing to the disturbed state of the country, he was dissuaded from attempting the undertaking by the French Consul at Chungking, who was able to prove to Captain Noiret that in the conditions attendant upon the revolution it would be utterly impossible for him to reach Ningyuen in the way he proposed. Captain Noiret accordingly returned to Shanghai. His intention is to go Hanoi and await instructions there either from Dr. Legendre or the French Government as to his future proceedings.

HONGKONG DIVORCE CASE.

In the London Divorce Court on December 12th before Mr. Justice Barragran Deane, the case of William A. Wildin and Wilma was heard. The petitioner, Mr. John Charles Wildin, now engaged in the Hongkong police, sought for a divorce from Emily Louisa Wildin, on the ground of her adultery. The suit was undefended.

Mr. Middleton appeared for the petitioner, who after marriage went out to Hongkong. He made his wife an allowance in his absence, and returned home in 1905 and lived with her in Longport. While at the latter place they separated, he going back to Hongkong and she to her relations at Hanley. Three years after the separation the wife, in November, 1908, had a child of which he was not the father. The birth of the child was proved by the production of the register, and a letter written by the wife was put in in which she said: "I know I have done wrong." His Lordship pointed out that there was no evidence as to the co-respondent. Mr. Middleton said they could not find him.

Decree granted.

BANK REMITTANCES BY REGISTERED LETTER.

The Vladivostok branch of the Russo-Asiatic Bank has been the victim of a piece of bad luck. It has just notified the Vladivostok post-office of the loss of a registered letter addressed to it, the letter, according to the bank's statement, containing no less than five thousand roubles. Now the post-office and the detective force are making an active search for the lost money. It has been ascertained that a registered letter from Hankow addressed to the local branch of the said bank was actually received at the local post office, but at the present time no trace whatever of it can be found. It appears, says the Japan Chronicle, that the banks and large firms have hitherto been practising a very simple means for the cheapening of the process of sending money through the mails; they have simply been sending it by registered letter. The dispatch of money by money order, on the other hand, costs three times as much. Sums amounting to 40,000 and 25,000 roubles respectively have on previous occasions been transferred to the Russo-Asiatic Bank by registered letter. Of course, in the event of the loss of the letter, the Postal Department is answerable only for the undelivered letter. In the case under review, for the loss of the registered letter with 5,000 roubles in it, the Postal Department is under obligation to give the bank only ten roubles!

MOTOR-CAR WITH WINGS.

M. Dautsch de la Mourthe gave himself an interesting Christmas present which is likely to be copied. It is called an air car, and is a Blériot aeroplane, which looks like a motor-car with wings.

The monoplane carries a wonderful little li-mousine car, quite lightly built, and fitted with four well-upholstered seats. There are doors and windows on either side. The windows are made of mica, and are shaped to offer very little or no resistance to the wind. The inside is lined with a soft material, to break the shock in case of a bump on landing. The motor and propeller are behind the car, and the driver sits in front of it. M. Blériot has made successful trial trips, and M. Dautsch de la Mourthe was thinking of crossing the Channel in his new car on New Year's eve, if the weather permitted.

SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY.

FOREST FOES AS BAD AS FIRE.

Not least of America's undesirable importations from Europe are certain insect pests. New England, for instance, is fighting the gipsy and brown-tail moths, and in Canada, Dr. C. G. Hewitt, the Dominion entomologist, estimates that the forest ravages of the larch saw-fly and the spruce budworm, with those of some minor insects, are as serious as the losses from forest fires. Both of the chief Canadian pests have spread over large areas. The larch saw-fly, thriving on the American as well as the European larch, was first noticed in America in 1881, but two years later it had spread over New England, reaching Canada by 1882, and it continued to develop rapidly until 1885. After nearly disappearing for a few years, it has been increasing at a great rate since 1904. The spruce budworm was first seen in considerable numbers in 1909, but its spread has been most extraordinary, and it is not only defoliating the balsam and spruce in eastern Canada, but is reported to be devouring the leaves of the Douglas pine in British Columbia.

VACUUM BLAST CLEANING.

Ordinary vacuum-cleaning has not been very effective in textile machinery, on account of the adhesiveness of the oily stuff forming most of the dirt to be removed. A new system is a combination of blowing and suction. The dirt is detached by a powerful air-blast, and is then collected and deposited in a canvas bag by a low-pressure vacuum. The apparatus is simple in operation, closing a single valve changing from air-blast to suction as the little machine is carried from flame to flame.

STRANGE ELEMENTS IN PLANTS.

The importance of aluminum and manganese to plant growth has surprised plant physiologists. In Bohemia manganese has been found to add quality to hops, and a special fertilizer of manganese superphosphate is employed. The abundance of manganese and aluminum in certain leaves has suggested to Prof. Steklars, of Prague, that these elements have a special function in the assimilation process.

COLOURED PHOTOGRAPHIC PRINTS.

The "Utocolor" photographic paper of Dr. J. H. Smith, as now being supplied by a French Society, is the result of years of experiment, and is from coloured negatives or any coloured transparency. The paper is placed under the negative in an ordinary printing frame, with a special light-filter over the frame to absorb ultra-violet rays and adjust the relative colour intensities. The gelatinous coating of the paper contains three dyes—blue, yellow, and red—which are bleached by light; and under coloured light, the dye or mixture of dyes that matches the light is changed less rapidly than the other colours, which absorb the light, the result being a reproduction of the coloured original. The ordinary exposure is about two hours in direct sunshine, or a longer time in diffused light. The print is fixed in a suitable solution, and is quite permanent in an album or other dark place, fading out slowly in a dimly lighted room.

HYPONOTIZED CRUSTACEANS.

The hypnotizing of lobsters and other crustaceans has been the curious subject of a Northumberland Sea Fisheries Committee. It has been known that lobsters could be put to sleep for a variable time by holding the head down and rapidly stroking the carapace, and one point to be determined was whether sending the blood to the head by the reversed position was essential. The horizontal position or lying on the back gave the same results. A native lobster remained motionless three hours and one from Norway 55 minutes, but all recovered when disturbed, and instantly when placed in water. Crabs became comatose in both the natural position and lying on the back. Respiration seemed to be unaffected.

A NEW PEN MATERIAL.

Rustless writing pens less expensive than iridium-tipped pens have been suggested to Heintze & Blankert of Berlin, by the hardness and unalterability of tantalum. Pens from this metal were cut, formed and split and treated with a special hardening process. Tests were made with pens of gold and steel in tracings over several miles of paper, and in the usual way, the points being then bent the hardened tantalum points proved superior to all others. The tantalum pens were uncorroded by any inks, though kept immersed several weeks.

DIAMOND HAND-SAWS.

Circular saws set with 70 to 100 diamonds in place of teeth have been used in stone cutting, but they are adapted only for small work, and a new development is a diamond hand-saw, which can cut through stone to a depth of six feet or more. This is now so perfected that it can saw marble or limestone at a speed of two inches per minute, although the old method of working a steel plate on a damp bed of sharp sand or shot could not exceed six or eight inches an hour. One of these saws already in operation in Somersetshire is a finely tempered band of steel set with 276 diamonds, which vary in weight from half a gram to a gram, and alternate

AN EXPLOSION VOLCANO.

A notable contribution to volcano literature is a special bulletin of the Philippine Weather Bureau by Rev. M. Saderra Masó, giving an account of the Yal eruption of January 31, 1911, which caused a loss of 1,300 lives. Many eruptions of this volcano are recorded, the most disastrous in 1754, and all have been violent explosions, throwing out great volumes of dust and ashes with no trace of liquid lava. The recent eruption was preceded by three days of rapidly succeeding earthquakes. The last explosion gave rise to a great vapour column 20,000 to 30,000 feet high, seen 250 miles away; and the partial vacuum caused an rush of air in what seems to have been a whirlwind, felt 70 miles away in Manila, and of almost hurricane violence near at hand. Magnificent lightning displays accompanied the eruption.

EVERYBODY'S DISEASE.

Tuberculin tests on 1,226 children by three Paris physicians have led to the conclusion that tuberculosis increases rapidly toward maturity, and that practically every person is at some time infected, recovery being spontaneous without trace of the disease in three persons out of four. The very sensitive test gave traces of tuberculosis in but few children of less than one year, while ninety per cent. of those over fifteen showed the tuberculin reaction, although the disease could be actually discovered in only a third as many.
